

Zlatogor Minchev is an “Associate Professor” (2010) on “Automation and Control”, IT for Security Department Head (2016) at Institute of ICT, Bulgarian Academy of Sciences; Part-time “Associate Professor” (2011) at Operations Research, Probabilities & Statistics Department, Institute of Mathematics & Informatics Bulgarian Academy of Sciences. Director of the Joint Training Simulation & Analysis Center (2007), organizing and conducting research in the fields of cybersecurity, crisis & emergency management. Special accent is also given to future threats analysis, modelling and forecasting; human factor response psycho-physiological monitoring and stimulation; distributed Computer Assisted eXercises in mixed cyber-physical realities. Author and co-author of a large number of scientific publications; successful participant in multiple national & international scientific projects on expert and managing positions; International visiting professor on multiaspect security and cybersecurity problems. Currently engaged with the international network “Secure Digital Future 21” for joint research and industrial future digital world security transcendences foreseeing; Awarded and distinguished with numerous prestigious national and international awards. Memberships: Union of the Bulgarian Mathematicians, Union of Automation and Informatics “John Vincent Atanassov”, Bulgarian Society of Physiological Sciences (2011-2016), NATO Research and Technology Organization (2006-2010), Editorial Board of the Journal of Defense Management, Association of the Officers in the Reserve “Atlantic” Managing Board (2012-2014, presently cybersecurity expert), E-Sigurnost (honourable member since 2016), Association of Communication & Information Specialists (Deputy Chairman, since 2016). Contacts: E-mail: zlatogor.minchev@gmail.com, Phone: +3592 979 6631